NOTE TO INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS
Securing a job in the United States as an international student takes a lot of hard work and preparation. To ensure you are giving yourself the best chance at finding employment, please take advantage of the following services.

Head to Career Services
Are you considering an internship or post-graduation job here in the United States? Make an appointment with a Career Services counselor to discuss job-search strategies, get your resume and cover letter checked, and/or do a mock interview.

Head to OISS
International students interested in pursuing internship and post-completion employment should attend CPT and OPT workshops offered by the Office of International Student Services (OISS). These workshops will give you the information necessary to successfully complete the necessary documentation.

International Student Resume Example
Please see page 52 for an example of an international student resume.

Career Development Strategies for International Students
1. Gain Experience! This may include:
   • Becoming Involved (on-campus clubs, volunteering, attending workshops)
   • Getting an Internship (in a related field)
   • Networking with professionals in your field (Networking & Etiquette Dinner, Career Fair, etc.)
   • Joining a Professional Organization (and attend a conference)
     • See Career Services website for examples
2. Improve Your English and Learn U.S. Culture
3. Put Yourself Out There (Don’t be afraid to spend time with Americans in different settings)
4. Educate Yourself (and employers) on F-1 Student Employment Regulations

RESEARCH 2-3 POSSIBLE CAREERS IN DEPTH:
Start your research by looking up careers of interest on the following websites:
  • Occupational Outlook Handbook: www.bls.gov/oco
  • O*NET Online: www.onetonline.org
  • La Verne CareerLink: https://laverne-csm.symplicity.com/students/
  • Other websites to do research on job descriptions:
    www.Indeed.com
    www.SimplyHired.com
    www.LinkedIn.com

QUICK TIPS:
  • Conduct informational interviews
  • Shadow a professional

ACADEMIC CAREER EXPLORATION:
  • Research opportunities
  • Research majors/career leads: http://sites.laverne.edu/careers/what-can-i-do-with-my-major/
  • Intentional class assignments
  • Seek out classes with service learning opportunities

CAMPUS INVOLVEMENT:
  • Develop your leadership skills by taking an active role in a student organization
  • Apply to be an OWL (Orientation Week Leader), Resident Advisor, Student Leader
  • Update your resume to reflect your college accomplishments

STILL UNDECLARED? CONFUSED ABOUT YOUR MAJOR?
  • You MUST declare a major by the end of your sophomore year!
  • Make an appointment with a Career Counselor to talk about possible majors that fit your interests, skills, abilities, & goals.
  • Evaluate the classes you have taken and determine the one or couple that interested you most.
  • Talk to faculty and students in the majors you are interested in to get a feel for the major.

EVENTS:
  • Speed Networking and Etiquette Dinner
  • Graduate School Week and Graduate School Fair
  • Spring Career and Internship Fair
Junior: Experience

DID YOU KNOW?
• Graduates with internship experience typically receive HIGHER STARTING SALARIES than graduates without internship experience

5 REASONS TO GET AN INTERNSHIP
1. Learn more about a chosen field of work
2. Apply classroom theory to real work situations
3. Identify and strengthen your interests and talents
4. Gain professional skills: written and oral communication skills, teamwork, and problem solving skills
5. Make contacts to build your network and gain future employment

DEVELOP AN INTERNSHIP SEARCH PLAN
• Professional Associations
  o Learn about an industry by joining a professional organization
  o Check out: www.weddles.com/associations
• Research opportunities
• Stay current with industry trends
• Intentional class assignments

DON’T WAIT! JOB SEARCH FALL SEMESTER!

• Your job search is very similar to your internship search. Review the “Developing an Internship Plan” section from the Junior Year plan.

JOB SEARCH STRATEGY #1 Know yourself & what you are looking for in a position. The Career Values section will help you determine what is most important to you in a position and/or company. Identifying this information will help you narrow your search to position that fits you.

JOB SEARCH STRATEGY #2 Treat your job search like a full-time job. Research, prepare your resume, contact companies, and build your network. Devote a significant amount of time to your search efforts.

JOB SEARCH STRATEGY #3 Attend career fairs & career events. Career Services hosts various events throughout the year that are open to all La Verne students and alumni.

JOB SEARCH STRATEGY #4 NETWORK! NETWORK! NETWORK! Networking is the number one way to find a job. Employers are more likely to hire someone through a personal reference.

• Email 3 old friends to reconnect
• Complete your entire profile on LinkedIn
• Reach out to friends, colleagues, family, and classmates
• Make sure your resume is up to date and ready to send out

JOB SEARCH STRATEGY #5 Meet with a Career Counselor to develop your strategy and plan for your job search.

CAMPUS INVOLVEMENT

• Apply for leadership positions where you can coach, train, and/ or supervise others

THINGS TO THINK ABOUT:

CAREER VALUES

• Similar to choosing a major, when you choose a career or job, you need to think about your values, needs, and wants.

GRADUATE STUDENT TWO-YEAR PLAN

First Year

1. Get to know the academic and professional resources at your disposal at ULV
   • Orient yourself to the campus, your department, and student services
   • Meet with your advisor to discuss academic and professional goals
   • Utilize the tutoring and mentoring services at the Graduate Success Center

2. Self-Assessment
   • Take the work/life values questionnaire (see career resources on our website)
   • Make a list of your strengths/weaknesses, career objectives, job deal-breakers, etc.

3. Meet with Career Counselor
   • Discuss career goals
   • Develop a strategic plan to meet these goals
   • Review resume and cover letter
   • Take a strengths and/or career assessment (if needed)

4. Research (and join) Professional Association(s)
   • Joining a professional association provides access to relevant news, materials, and networking opportunities
   • Having a professional association on your resume shows a commitment to the field and to your own professional development
   • Most professional associations have heavily discounted student membership fees

5. Conduct an Informational Interview
   • This should be someone in an upper-level position in your field of study
   • Create a list of 7-10 questions to ask your interviewee (see career resources link for more information)
   • DON’T ask this person for a job!

6. Apply for Internships
   • DID YOU KNOW? Graduates with internship experience typically receive higher starting salaries than graduates without internship experience
   • Internships are especially important for career changers and others new to the field
   • Internships provide a chance to network and build relationships with those in the field on top of giving one the opportunity to develop professional skills
   • International Students: Be sure to visit the Office of International Student Services to discuss possible internship opportunities
Second Year

1. Shore up Online Presence (if needed)
   - Everyone should have a professional and detailed LinkedIn profile as most employers and recruiters will check this to confirm employment history, skills, etc.
   - Check your social network profiles and settings to make sure you aren’t showing the world what you don’t want to be seen

2. Come to Career Services Workshops and Events
   - Networking and Etiquette Dinner
   - Career Fair
   - Workshops
   - International Students: Be sure to attend an OPT workshop for information on applying for this work authorization

3. Meet with Career Counselor
   - Discuss job search process and resources
   - Refine resume and cover letter

4. Apply, Apply, Apply
   - Notify your contacts (professors, professional network) that you are applying for jobs
   - Tailor your resume and cover letter for each position
     - Drawing from a master resume and cover letter can make this process less time-consuming

5. Mock Interview
   - Before you interview for a real job, come in to Career Services for a mock interview
   - Prepare for this interview as if it were a real interview. Dress nicely and send your resume, cover letter, and a job description to Career Services at least 24 hours before the mock interview
MAJOR/CAREER ASSESSMENTS

Myers Briggs Type Inventory

Developed as a general personality assessment, the MBTI is useful in understanding your preferences in behavior in all types of settings, including how you relate to others and in school and the workplace. It measures your natural inclinations in the following four areas:

- How you focus your attention (are you an Extrovert or an Introvert?)
- How you acquire information (are you a Sensor or an Intuitor?)
- How you make decisions (are you a Thinker or a Feeler?)
- How you orient yourself in the world (are you a Judger or a Perceiver?)

Strong Interest Inventory

This assessment is based on the Holland code, which links personality types and interests to different job fields. John Holland’s theory of career development provides the basis for most of the career inventories used today. It will associate your career preferences within three of six possible types:

- Realistic- “the Do-er”
- Investigative- “the Thinker”
- Artistic- “the Creator”
- Social- “the Helper”
- Enterprising- “the Persuader”
- Conventional- “the Organizer”

StrengthsQuest: Discover and Develop Your Strengths in Academics, Career, and Beyond

The Clifton StrengthsFinder is a 30-minute, Web-based assessment that measures the presence of 34 themes of talent.

Life Values Inventory ©Brown, Duane and Crace, R. Kelly, 1996

This assessment helps you identify the values and beliefs that guide your behavior and influence your satisfaction within a profession. These values are not necessarily specific to a career field or major, but can be nurtured within any work environment. You will rank 14 values in order of their importance to you, including the following: achievement, belonging, spirituality, and concern for others. A counselor will help you to identify careers that can help to support these values.
GRADUATE SCHOOL INFORMATION

Reasons to pursue graduate school:

• To expand knowledge in a particular subject
• To prepare for a career in a specialized field
• To receive a promotion or increase your competitiveness within your field

Reasons NOT to pursue graduate school:

• Family or friends think you should
• You want to say you have the degree
• You don’t want to have to look for a job or work full-time yet

First, take time to assess your goals and decide if the amount of time, work and money you must commit to a graduate program is worth it to you. Ask yourself some of the following questions: Am I ready to continue being a student? Do I have sufficient financial resources? Do I know enough about the field to make this commitment? Would it be more appropriate to work first and then return to school? Are there other options that I should consider? Is this the best career path for me?

Next, meet with a career counselor to discuss conducting informational interviews with professionals to get an inside look at what it could be like to work in that field or hold a position requiring a terminal degree.

CHOOSING A GRADUATE PROGRAM TO FIT YOUR NEEDS

Once you make a decision to pursue a graduate degree, apply to several schools. Talk to faculty advisors and professionals in the field to determine the best programs for you. Also consider the following components:

Institution
- Do the institution and specific department have a good reputation?
  Evaluate the quality of the academic department itself. Remember that while a university as a whole may hold an excellent reputation, each department within the institution will be ranked differently. A lesser known or lower-rated institution may offer an excellent department in a particular area of study. Search www.usnews.com for schools’ ratings based on statistics and expert opinion.
Faculty
- Who are the faculty members? What is their work experience within the field? What have they published?
- What are their areas of specialization? What are their specific research interests?
- What is the faculty to student ratio?
- What type of personal contact will you have with faculty?
  Good sources of information are college and department websites are good sources of this information. You can also request more detailed information directly from the department or set up a phone or in-person meeting with an admissions counselor.

Program Content
- Does the program fit my personal goals and educational interests?
- Does the program utilize an interdisciplinary approach to the field or focus on one specific approach?
- What are the philosophy and methods of instruction?
- What is the retention rate into the second year of the program?
- Are internships or assistantships a required aspect of the program?
- If certification or testing to graduate is required, what percentage of the class passes?
  It may be possible to view students’ final projects or papers, or even sit in on a class to understand the methods of instruction. Admissions counselors and current or former students are the best people to talk to regarding program content.

Facilities
  If possible, visit the institution to get an idea of campus life. Ask about the libraries, laboratories and research facilities as well as any cooperative arrangements with other research educational and professional organizations. Also consider housing facilities and common areas—are there places set aside for graduate students to meet and socialize?

Students
- What do graduates of the program go on to do? Where are they employed?
- What do graduates conduct their theses/dissertations on?
- Is the school selective with regard to admissions?
- What is the demographic make-up of the student body?

A. GEOGRAPHIC LOCATION
1. Do you prefer an urban or rural environment?
2. A hot, cold, or mild climate?
3. Will the location offer an outlet for your individual interests and activities?
4. What is the distance from home?

B. COSTS AND FINANCIAL AID
1. Do tuition and fees fit your budget?
2. What type of work-study programs, loans, scholarships, research opportunities, and assistantships are available?
3. Can you qualify for these?
C. ADMISSIONS PROCEDURES

1. Do you know the admissions procedures?
2. Are any advanced exams required?
3. Will you have to complete any prerequisite coursework?
4. Will you have to take the GRE or any other entrance exams?

THE APPLICATION PROCESS

Find out the application deadlines for each school in which you are interested. By that deadline, each school will want to have a completed file on you, containing all the information required in order to consider your application.

The Application Form

An application packet must be individually requested from the Graduate Division of each school you are considering. Be sure to read the instructions carefully and to fill out the form completely and neatly. Some departments have additional departmental forms, so when requesting an application packet, specify the program in which you are interested. Also, keep in mind that some schools have early decision programs and it is to your advantage to apply early to these.

Personal Statement

Often the graduate school application requests a personal statement. This should be a concise, well-written essay which demonstrates your ability to organize and present ideas clearly. Your statement of purpose should reflect your background, qualifications and goals in positive. For detailed information on this topic, refer to the "Developing Your Personal Statement" section of this booklet.

Tests

Most graduate programs require scores from standardized admissions tests. Below are the common tests -- be sure you have read the requirements for admission carefully so that you are aware of all the tests necessary and the deadline dates for submission of the test results. Application materials, for most tests, are available in the Career Development Center.

Transcripts

It is your responsibility to have an official copy of transcripts sent to each school to which you are applying. Requests for official transcripts should be filed with the Registrar Office at least ten working days before desired mailing date. There is a $5.00 fee for each official transcript requested.

Letters of Recommendation

Although some institutions no longer require confidential letters of recommendation, many still do. Letters of recommendation should be requested from professors, advisors, employers or other individuals who are familiar with your work, undergraduate preparation, commitment, motivation, and/or potential. Choose people who view your work positively. Ask them if they feel they can write you a good letter.

When requesting a letter, it is much better to talk to your potential letter writer in person and provide all the necessary information, i.e., a copy of your personal statement, unofficial transcripts, list of classes or experience that individual has had with you, special projects or reports in classes with that individual, and school activities. Letters which reflect a personal knowledge of you as an individual are much better than generalized, impersonal letters which only describe your academic performance in class.
There are several kinds of financial assistance available for graduate students. These include fellowships, scholarships, teaching and research assistantships, loans and grant-in-aid. Some of these are through the school and others are from outside agencies. Financial aid application deadlines are frequently earlier than the general application deadline. If you are currently receiving financial aid, you may also request that the application fee be waived.

Fellowships: On the graduate level, the equivalent of a scholarship is a fellowship. It is usually a straight monetary award given on the basis of scholastic achievement. Fellowships are often tax-free unless they involve teaching or research; in these cases the recipient will more than likely be required to report them for income tax purposes. Specific institutions have their own fellowships, which you may identify by contacting the school's financial aid office and the department to which you are applying. The federal government also supports some fellowships, for which applications may be made through the institution to which you are applying.

Assistantships: Teaching or research assistantships are often available through the academic department or program of study. Assistantships usually involve working 10-20 hours per week in exchange for some stipend and/or fee remission. Although fee remission are common, be aware that in accepting a graduate assistantship, you still may be responsible for partial payment of your tuition and/or fees. Requests for information on graduate assistantships and applications should be made directly to the department or program of interest to you.

Resident Assistantships: Some institutions have programs in which graduate students earn a stipend, room and board, or both by working as assistants in undergraduate residence halls. If you do not receive information on such a program, along with your application materials, you might contact the school's director of housing and residential life to inquire about such possibilities.

Long Term Educational Loans: Most institutions have loan programs for which graduate students may be eligible. Such programs include private, state, and federally-sponsored student loans. The institution's financial aid office will be able to explain these loan programs to you.

A Word of Caution: Financial support of graduate education may vary widely from institution to institution. Therefore, it is essential for prospective applicants to thoroughly investigate the availability of financial aid in all its various forms as they go about the admissions process. Both the sources and amounts of financial aid are important considerations. This is another of the reasons why students considering further education should begin the process early.

APPLYING TO GRADUATE SCHOOL
Senior Year Timetable

SEPTEMBER
- Talk to ULV faculty and career counselors at the Career Services Center about Graduate School plans and alternatives.
- Write to schools you have selected to request admissions and financial aid applications.
- Find out when graduate transcripts must be sent and what other materials are required with applications.
- Register for needed entrance examinations.

OCTOBER
- Take required examinations.
- Make contact with administrators, students, faculty and/or alumni at each institution you are considering for helpful information.
- Talk to graduate recruiters at the various institutions you are considering.
- Visit, if possible, the schools you are interested in. Talk with admissions people, faculty, and students.

NOVEMBER
- Secure needed letters of recommendation.
- Begin preparing any required financial statements. These are often required at the same time or earlier than admissions applications.

DECEMBER
- Take required examinations this month if you didn't do it in October.
- Send admission applications in this month.
- Check on the transcripts and letters of recommendations to see that they have been sent.
- If you have not done so, visit the schools to which you are applying.

JANUARY
- Last chance to take the required tests for fall admission (may be too late for some schools).
- Check with each school to see that they have received all materials, including test scores and financial statements. If some of your application materials are missing, you might be eliminated from consideration.

FEBRUARY
- Wait (might seem like forever) to hear whether you have been accepted.
- Continue to make contact with representatives of the schools to which you have applied to check on the progress of your applications.
- Finish outlining contingency plans in the event you are not accepted.

IF YOU DON'T GET ACCEPTED
- Talk to a Career Counselor to determine reasons and whether you should change your goals.
- Take heart! Realize that students are sometimes accepted on their second or third try, or when they choose a different goal or choice of study.
DEVELOPING A PERSONAL STATEMENT

Applications for graduate or professional schools often include a section requiring you to write a Personal Statement, an essay about your background, and your reasons for wanting to pursue advanced study in the field or profession you have chosen. If the application asks you to respond to certain questions or cover certain topics in your statement, make sure that you do so.

Your essay should be clear, concise, and well written. Talk about yourself and your experiences in positive terms. The Personal Statement is important to admission selection committees; it provides them with a sample of your writing skills and your ability to present ideas in clear, coherent language. As you write it, ask yourself, "Would I be inclined to admit myself to graduate school?" Before submitting the statement, seek constructive comments and criticism from friends and advisors. The following is a sample outline which might be used in writing a Personal Statement:

I. OPENING PARAGRAPH: State your general reasons for pursuing graduate study and introduce yourself to the selection committee. Make it interesting; the committee members will read many applications, so be sure yours gives them a sense of your particular talents and individuality.

II. BACKGROUND: Concentrate on those experiences that have served as a foundation for your forthcoming graduate work. Describe your community and family background and tell how your interest in, and knowledge of, your chosen field developed. Giving examples, describe any personal attributes and qualities that would help you complete graduate study successfully, such as determination in achieving your goals, initiative and ability in developing ideas, and capacity for working through problems independently.

III. QUALIFICATIONS: Describe those experiences that will serve as a foundation for your forthcoming graduate work. Discuss (1) your expertise and accomplishments in your major field, (2) your undergraduate studies in general and how they relate to what you intend to do in graduate school, (3) specific learning experiences that demonstrate your motivation and inspiration for continued study, and (4) other relevant experiences such as jobs for community activities, including names of organizations and other concrete detail.

IV. GOALS AND OBJECTIVES:

   A. Short term -- what specific area do you want to study in graduate school?
   B. Long term -- how do you intend to combine your knowledge and experience with your graduate work to achieve goals?
   C. What impact will you have on society, community, etc., with your advanced degree (i.e. M.D., J.D., M.A., Ph.D., etc.)?

V. CLOSING PARAGRAPH: It should pack the punch -- that is, leave the reader with a strong sense that you are qualified and that you will be successful in graduate school. (You should combine this with your qualifications.)

HINTS

1. Be clear and concise.
2. Talk about yourself positively, avoid negative experience.
3. Start with an outline. After you have written your first draft, pretend you are on the selection committee. Would you accept yourself on the basis of your statement? If not, why? Work out problems and rewrite.
4. If you want someone to check your statement, have an advisor, a faculty member and/or friends, etc., read it and ask for constructive criticism.

BREAKING DOWN JOB DESCRIPTIONS

What to look for when reading a job description

The first thing you want to ask yourself when reading a job description is, “what kind of employee are they really looking for?” Put yourself in the shoes of the hiring manager. If you had to choose a handful of candidates among a sea of applicants, what would you be looking for most when reviewing resumes and cover letters? This should inform the content and layout of your materials. If you need help with this, make an appointment with the Career Services office and bring in a job description…or two for further review.

Next, you want to highlight the keywords. In the example below, you will find that the action verbs used in the job description have been made bold while other important terminology has been underlined. It is important to use the same language as the job description, so these words can serve as a guide when writing (or adjusting) bullet points and other key words on your resume and/or cover letter.

Finally, make sure you haven’t missed any important instructions. These could include the opening and closing date for applications; a list of materials needed (i.e. resume, cover letter, references), and contact information (is the name of the hiring manager listed?).

Below is an example of a real job description with appropriate keywords highlighted:

Event Marketing Manager

Job Title: Event Marketing Manager
Employment Status: Full Time

Description: Marketing Manager, Event Marketing

POSITION SUMMARY:
The Marketing Manager, Event Marketing, will be responsible for working with various BUs, senior-level executives and other business divisions and professionals, depending on the program. This position will manage outside vendors, third-party suppliers and contractors who provide services to the business. This position has a direct impact on BU operations through timely project management of various elements of conferences, trade shows, alliance and partner events.

There is considerable interaction with all BUs, executives, internal / external support teams, and vendors. This position requires an extraordinary attention to detail when managing project plans and schedules. Thorough review processes and effective project management must be employed to quickly address any issues.

- Research, evaluate and recommend shows aligning with marketing and sales initiatives.
- Manage sponsorships, speakers, advertising, booth operations, messaging, outside exhibit house and booth design.
- Marketing plan and materials development - Develop and deploy strategic event marketing plan to increase lead generation and ROI.
- Create engaging pre- and post-show messaging and outreach programs.
- Work with creative director to create targeted marketing materials, graphics and signage for each event.
- Internal and external communications – Build internal and external partner relationships and Develop communications (including social media) that drive attendance.
- Direct and motivate event teams.
- Sales conferences/executive meetings – Plan and execute various AVS sales meetings and conferences for multiple business units and program-related deliverables, including site selection, contract negotiations, project management, creating and maintaining budget, client management, adherence to program budget, creation of banquet event orders, maintenance of rooming list, air and registration team coordination, program specifications design, onsite management, trip director sourcing, invoice generation and final billing reconciliation.
- Budget and vendor management – Identify alternatives for keeping meeting and special event costs within the overall budget. Manage budget and work with the vice president of marketing and finance to process, code and track invoices and payments.
- Project management – Work with Marketing Central project-management database. Develop and maintain sample library for all marketing-related elements associated with meetings and events. Support various meeting and special events projects in a manner consistent with strategic objectives.
- Reporting – Prepare monthly reports to the Vice President of Marketing of ADP’s Added Value Services that outline current event schedule, with ROI tracking.

Experience, Skills, Academic:

EDUCATION:

- Bachelor’s degree in marketing, communications, tourism, hospitality or related field.

EXPERIENCE and SKILLS:

- Five years of proven expertise in planning for large conferences, trade shows, executive meetings and other events.
- Ability to simultaneously manage multiple projects from conception to completion.
• Experience with production and staging.
• Ability to meet deadlines under pressure in a changing, fast-paced, deadline-oriented environment.
• Creation and management of production schedules and processes.
• Solid understanding of ERP conferences and trade shows.
• Excellent organization, prioritization, and time management skills. (Soft Skills – Cover Letter)
• Excellent communication skills (written and verbal) with strong presentation skills and ability to interact with all levels of leadership.
• Strong work ethic and ability to multitask with attention to detail.
• Solid knowledge working with the legal department on hotel and event contracts.
• Experience managing external and internal vendor relationships and working within defined budget parameters.
• Ability to negotiate contracts and develop and achieve budget goals
• Extensive knowledge of the AVS lines of business (preferred).

TRAVEL: This role requires 45 – 65% percent travel and can be performed from a home office.

TECHNOLOGY REQUIREMENTS:

• Strong Microsoft Office skills, including Outlook, Excel, Word, PowerPoint and Live Meeting.
• Moderate knowledge of image manipulation, drawing, page layout and web design applications.
• Knowledge of print, video and other media production processes.
• Willingness to learn the technical aspects of the company’s products and services (tax, human resources compliance, electronic payments).
• Ability to learn new software quickly.
• Prior knowledge of Salesforce.com, IBM project management software, Registration Online, Marketing Central, Market Point/Zuant event and lead gathering iPad solution, Facebook, LinkedIn, Twitter, Pinterest, YouTube and Slide Share preferred.
WHAT IS A RESUME?

A resume highlights the best and most related aspects of your professional and educational qualifications. It is designed to give a potential employer a positive first impression of you. In essence, your resume is your best marketing tool. The purpose of a resume is to tell an employer the specific skills and experience you have that directly relate to each job you are applying for.

BEFORE STARTING YOUR RESUME

A well-constructed and effective resume requires that background work be done before you begin writing. Begin by taking a personal inventory. Examine and define your skills, interests, accomplishments and experiences. These include professional, academic, volunteer, and internship experiences.

FORMAT

Chronological vs. Functional/Combination Resumes

- Chronological- the most widely used style today. The most useful format for students and new professionals. This format is a listing of your work experience organized by job title in reverse chronological order, beginning with your most recent or current position first.
- Functional/Combination- This format groups your work experience in skill-related categories, with job titles listed at the bottom of the resume.

When to Use a Functional/Combination Resume:

- you are a seasoned professional (you have 12+ years of employment)
- you have worked in a variety of unrelated fields and settings
- you are making a career change
- you are returning to the workforce and/or have gaps in employment
- you want to draw attention to transferrable skills and not job titles

- Be concise and specific. Your resume should say the most about you in the fewest words. One page is best, though two pages are acceptable if you have enough pertinent experience.
- Include only pertinent information. There should be a reason for everything in your resume. Leave out personal information including age, race, and marital status. Do not feel that you need to summarize your entire job history- the purpose is to focus on the most impressive and relevant experience.
- Use telegraphic style. Omit personal pronouns such as “I” and “We”. Example: “Designed promotional campaign to alert community of changes in regional voting guidelines.”
- Use skill and ability verbs. Begin each statement or phrase with a descriptive verb that indicates what you accomplished in the position. See page 5 for examples.
- Get feedback. Have a counselor in the Career Services Center help you in designing your resume and be sure that you proofread it!
1. Heading: At the top of the page, include your name, address, zip code, telephone number and email address. Be sure that your email address is professional! If necessary, create a free account through Gmail or Yahoo just for job search purposes. If you live on campus, you may want to include both your campus address and a permanent address. Your phone number is very important. You must be able to be reached during the day or have a message machine to answer your calls.

2. Career Objective (optional): Employers often state that they skip over reading a career objective, so we normally advise clients not to include one. However, if you really believe it is crucial in applying for a specific position, be sure that it is detailed and specific. It should lead the reader and direct him/her to the position you are interested in. It should include a) the action you want to do, b) the areas in which you want to do it, and c) the skills you have to contribute to that position. The rest of your resume should give concrete examples or backup your career objective.

3. Education: Unless you have been in the field for a number of years, the education component will precede your work experience. List your current degree, major, and year of graduation, even if you have not yet graduated. On the next line, list the college's name and location. Do not include your high school experience. You may also list your GPA here if it is above a 3.5, as well as any merit-based scholarships (i.e. Dean’s List, honors program, etc.).

4. Related Coursework (optional): If you are lacking in job or internship experience, a relevant coursework section can help demonstrate your skills in a specific field. List up to three classes and give a short description of the work you completed in them. Original research is especially impressive.

5. Related Experience: List the most recent information first. Indicate your job title, the name of the organization, location (city and state), and dates of employment. Next, describe the specific abilities and responsibilities you assumed and acquired in bullet format. Focus on the skills that directly relate to the new position. This is where you can include on-campus involvement, volunteer and internship experience; remember, it does not have to be paid in order to count! The below list of questions will help you in creating your bullet points.

   - Did you do something faster, better, or cheaper?
   - Did you increase membership, participation, or sales?
   - Did you save your organization any money or eliminate waste?
   - Did you identify and/or help solve any problems?
   - Did you institute any new methods, procedures, services or products?
   - Did you reorganize or improve an existing system?
   - Did you coordinate any event or project?
   - Did you train another person? What were the results?
   - Did you tutor anyone? Did his/her grades improve?

Avoid making bullet points sound like you took them directly from the job description. Instead, pack them full of accomplishments and supporting evidence. This helps employers know how you went above and beyond in your job. For example:
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Before:</th>
<th>After:</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>• Wrote reports</td>
<td>• Consistently called on by department manager to organize monthly reports in easy-to-read language for general public</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Successfully completed projects</td>
<td>• Created proposal for new program to meet needs of underrepresented population, which was immediately implemented by director of outreach efforts</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• High level of interest in international relations</td>
<td>• Excellled in 3 courses on the Middle-East culture and conflict with combined GPA of 3.6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Managed books</td>
<td>• Closed books within three days of end of month for first time in company’s history</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Provided customer service</td>
<td>• Used diplomacy and programmatic knowledge to transform dissatisfied customer base, resulting in 96% referral rate</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Filed documents and created new forms</td>
<td>• Implemented standardized filing system with electronic forms to assist over 200 employees in timely processing of documents</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Managed internship program</td>
<td>• Developed internship program employing 50 high school students per year, improving company image and community relations</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>• Led trainings and presentations</td>
<td>• Delivered presentation on summer research project to key lead faculty and staff; department chair described project as “innovative and enlightening”</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

6. Additional or Optional Headings: Your resume should be individualized to you and best highlight your specific experience. See below for other possible headings. Place here any school or community activities that don’t fit in your related experience section above.

- Volunteer Experience
- Community Service
- Professional Affiliations/Memberships
- On-Campus Involvement/Activities
- Publications and Presentations
- Honors
7. Other Skills: List your computer skills, including proficiency in Microsoft Office programs or any other pertinent computer programs. You can also list language abilities (i.e. working knowledge of Spanish) and certifications, including First Aid and CPR.

8. References: Do not use the phrase "Available Upon Request." It is understood that you will provide references when you interview or when requested. References must also be professional: use professors, advisors, and previous employers for references rather than friends and family. When using someone as a reference, always get their permission first and give them a copy of your resume and job description so they are aware of your objective and direction. If you are asking faculty members to be a reference for you, you should ask the faculty member in the beginning to middle of the semester. Do not wait until the end of the semester to request a written reference from a faculty member.

FUNCTIONAL/COMBINATION RESUME COMPONENTS

1. Heading - Located at the top of the page; include your name, address, zip code, telephone number and email address. Be sure to place it at the top of every page of your resume, cover letter and references page.

2. Profile (optional) - This should immediately state the position you are interested in and the skills you can bring to that position. It is also a great place to summarize the number of years you have spent in a field. Remember that the rest of your resume should directly support your objective. Be sure to use key words that stand out to the employer upon first glance. You may also provide an explanation for gaps in employment here. For example, if you are a parent who has stayed home for a number of years raising your children, you might say, “Accomplished marketing professional with eight years of experience in global marketing and branding returning to workplace after working at home full-time raising three children and managing family.”

3. Summary of Qualifications/Relevant Experience - Choose 2-3 overarching themes/skill sets that encapsulate your experience and reflect the type of qualifications the company is requesting. If you are having a difficult time choosing these themes/skill sets, use the job description to inspire you. For example, if a company advertises that they are looking for someone who is innovative or has strong initiative, you could create a section titled “Leadership and Initiative.” Other useful section themes include “Management and Supervision” “Communication” “Administrative Skills” and “Customer/Client Relations.” Under each section theme, organize bullet points from each of the positions you have held. The bullet points should begin with strong skill and ability verbs. They should also highlight accomplishments and be relevant to the position for which you are applying. Remember to be specific (include numbers, quotas and outcomes when possible). They should also demonstrate transferrable skills, or skills you have developed in a job or leadership experience that you can apply in any professional setting. Use the below questions to get you started.
• Did you do something faster, better, or cheaper?
• Did you increase membership, participation, or sales?
• Did you save your organization any money or eliminate waste?
• Did you identify and/or help solve any problems?
• Did you institute any new methods, procedures, services or products?
• Did you reorganize or improve an existing system?
• Did you coordinate an event or project?
• Did you train another person? What were the results?
• Did you tutor anyone? Did their grades improve?
• Did you state your transferrable skills?
  ▪ Example: “Ensured retention of quality employees as team supervisor through demonstrating open communication, solving problems in a timely manner and promoting company buy-in.”

4. Work History or Employment- List positions held in reverse chronological order beginning with the most recent or current job. You do not need to include jobs held more than 15 years ago unless they are specifically relevant to the position for which you are applying. Include company name, location and dates. Do not include descriptions of your job responsibilities or accomplishments, as these should be adequately covered in your Summary of Qualifications section.

5. Education- If you have been out of school for 10 years or more, your education section can be listed last. Your work experience is more recent and therefore should be placed above your education. If you don’t want to be “dated” by how long ago you earned your degree, you may omit your graduation date. However, be prepared to state it honestly when asked. Otherwise, include university name, degree earned, location, and graduation date (even if it is in the future). Do not include your Associates’ degree, unless it is necessary to qualify you for a specific field. In general, your Bachelor’s degree is the most important degree. If you have a terminal degree (Master’s or Doctoral) state it first and still include your Bachelor’s.

5. Achievements/Technical Skills/Other Skills, etc. - These can include special licensing, awards, computer skills, languages you speak, and any other ability that would lend to the position for which you are applying.
RESUME DO’S

1. Use high quality paper. When you mail your resume or when you bring it to an interview, use resume quality paper (this is available for free in the Career Services office.). You may use either off white, gray, or very light beige. Avoid pastels or bright colors. Be sure to use matching paper for your cover letters.

2. Use professional font styles. Suggested fonts include: Arial, Times New Roman, or Helvetica. Do not use smaller than 11 point font or larger than 12 point font in the body of your resume. Your name in the header should be 2 font sizes larger than the rest of the resume.

3. Be consistent in your layout and composition. Do not switch from sentences to phrases. Be sure that related headings are consistent in underlining, capitalization, and spacing.

4. Verb tense. Use past tense for jobs or experiences you have completed, and present tense to describe ongoing or current employment.

5. Bullet points. Arrange information in bullet points, not in paragraph form. Large dots are effective in drawing the employer’s attention to competencies, accomplishments, or achievements.

6. Limit your resume to one page, unless a second page is absolutely necessary. You should be able to get all pertinent information on one page!

7. Proof read your resume- spelling and grammatical errors are unacceptable! Even one mistake can lead an employer to discount you for a position. Ask several people to review your resume for both content and grammar/spelling. If there is something they do not understand or they think needs more explanation, then there is a good chance an employer will not understand it either.

RESUME DON’TS

1. Don’t use italics or fancy scripts.
2. Don’t include photographs.
3. Don’t put in fancy binders or folders.
4. Don’t include the complete address of prior employers.
5. Don’t include salary information or expectations, unless specifically requested.
6. Don’t include lengthy periods of unemployment.
7. Don’t exaggerate or embellish your experience.
8. Don’t use slang or conjunctions.

TRANSFERABLE SKILLS AND EXPERIENCES

*Transferable skills and experiences may be defined as skills gained (on the job) in one occupation or industry that are relevant to the new position you are applying for.

For Example:
*You are an accounting major who has previously worked as a student assistant in the Career Services office.

Transferable Experience
- Catalogued office supplies using Microsoft Excel to maintain target number of materials available for use by the department

NOT Transferable Experience
- Helped pass out lunch to employers at career fairs

Other examples of skills and experiences that may transfer across industries include:
- Customer/Client Service
- Sales
- Supervision
- Maintenance of Schedule/Database
- Development of new materials and/or items
- Collaboration across departments
- Presentations

WRITING BETTER BULLET POINTS

An experience bullet point has two distinct parts:
(1) The Action: action verb* + job responsibility
(2) The Purpose / Method / Scope / Result
   (Why?) (How?) (How much?)

Think…
Action → purpose/method/scope/result
*Don’t repeat action verbs too often

Examples (Bad):
- Responsible for entering information into database
- Worked in a fast-paced environment
- Trained new employees

Examples (Good):
- Managed customer database using QuickBooks and Microsoft Excel
- Maintained excellent customer service while serving guests in a fast-paced environment
- Trained more than 10 new employees using knowledge of company handbook and location-specific needs

Ms. Lea Leopard, Human Resources Director
Big Steel Company
555 Steel Way
Los Angeles, CA 90000

Dear Ms. Leopard,

My background working in the manufacturing and metals sectors in both human resources and operations roles uniquely qualifies me to succeed as a Human Resources Manager at Big Steel Company, an industry leader in the manufacturing of steel sheeting. With years of experience working with complicated state and federal employment regulations and diverse workforces, I offer a strong, consultative approach to human resource management.

As a Human Resources Generalist, I developed and utilized effective communication strategies across HR functions, including implementing trainings and presentations, partnering with senior-level managers, resolving employee issues, and participating in strategic organizational planning projects.

In addition, my experience in the manufacturing sector allowed me to become highly proficient in managing both union and non-union worker compliance regulations. While at Radiometer, Inc., I worked with management teams in the negotiation of a new collective-bargaining agreement with our union employees, completing the agreement with no work stoppages.

These industry experiences, along with my educational pursuits, provided me with a broad range of practical knowledge, which will allow me to succeed as a Human Resources Manager at Big Steel Company. I look forward to discussing my qualifications further. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

H.R. Keene

COVER LETTER WRITING

Why write a cover letter?
Writing a cover letter increases the value of your resume to the prospective employer. A well-written cover letter introduces your resume and motivates the employer to read it with greater interest and attention. The cover letter should be utilized as a tool to link yourself to the employer and demonstrate your writing skills.

Do employers really read cover letters?
Yes! The real question isn’t if but when do employers read cover letters? Think about how you sort through a stack of information. First, you’d probably skim the resume and first paragraph of the cover letter to sort candidates into ‘yes’, ‘no’ and ‘maybe’ piles. The second time through, you’d read everything closely to whittle down your ‘yes’ pile to 3-5 strong candidates to invite to interview.

Will a cover letter really make a difference?
Yes, because it makes your argument about how you can contribute to their organization. Those without cover letters have to hope that the employer can figure that out. A cover letter proves that you know what you have to offer and that you can communicate it!

Cover Letter Tips:

• Your cover letter should highlight your strengths. Think of your cover letter as a tool for explaining to the employer that the strengths you possess make you an ideal candidate for the position.
• These strengths should match what the employer is looking for.
• Add examples from your resume to support the strengths discussed in the cover letter.
• ‘Make sure it is well written and meaningful: employers will use a cover letter to measure your writing ability.
• Include the heading from your resume for a uniform look.
• Address the letter to a specific person. If you don’t know their name, call the company and ask for it (be sure you get the correct spelling and gender). If no one can provide it for you, address your letter as “Dear Title” (i.e. “Dear Director of Marketing” or “Dear Finance Manager”).
• Tailor each cover letter to each company: demonstrate to the employer why you want to work specifically for them.
• Back up every statement with concrete evidence.
• Keep it simple and to the point-1 page only!
• Use language that conveys confidence, eagerness, optimism and energy.

Ms. Samantha Smith, Intern Coordinator
Nordstrom
555 Nordstrom Way
Los Angeles, CA 90000

Dear Ms. Smith,

I am writing to express my interest in the M.B.A. Internship position posted on the Nordstrom Careers website. As Master’s in Business Administration major with a concentration in Marketing, I offer strong communication and social media marketing skills, as well as knowledge of professional business practices.

I have a strong passion for the fashion industry as evidenced by my more than three years working with clothing and accessory retailers. Throughout my time as a sales associate with Nordstrom, I have developed my ability to communicate effectively with diverse customers as they search for something new, as well as with team members in order to operate as efficiently and effectively as possible. In addition, I am active with social media, including frequent use of Facebook, Twitter, and Pinterest, among others. I also have my own fashion/food blog, which has over 100 followers.

My coursework at the University of La Verne has provided me with a strong foundation of professional business and marketing practices. Areas of strength include my ability to analyze market trends and consumer behavior and develop professional business and marketing plans. One of the projects I have led included meeting with a professional marketing team from a large clothing retailer and creating a complete strategic plan based on the information given and subsequent research conducted.

My experience as a Nordstrom team member, along with my educational background makes me an ideal candidate for this M.B.A. Internship position. I look forward to discussing my qualifications further. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Lea Leopard

La Verne Physical Therapy
555 Leo Way
La Verne, CA 90000

Dear Hiring Manager,

Please accept my résumé for the Physical Therapy Aide position listed on the University of La Verne’s Career Link. The skills, qualities, and determination I possess, along with my passion for helping others overcome physical and mental challenges make me an ideal fit for this position and your organization. The following are examples of key strengths that will aid me in succeeding in this position:

- Knowledge of Anatomy & Physiology – As a Kinesiology major, my coursework at the University of La Verne, combined with my experience with trainers and doctors as a student athlete, have provided me with the necessary knowledge of the human body to perform as a Physical Therapy Aide.
- Excellent Communication Skills – My previous experience in retail sales allowed me to develop my communication skills with clients and colleagues. In addition, my fluency in Spanish has served to aid in my communications in professional, educational, and community settings.
- Ability to Multitask – During my time as a student at the University of La Verne, I have successfully balanced my classwork, responsibilities as a student athlete, volunteer work in the community, and working during breaks in sessions.
- Team Skills – As a student athlete, I have been elected to various leadership positions for my teams, including twice being selected as a team captain. My work as a volunteer coach for youth sports has contributed to my abilities to foster a team-oriented atmosphere from a position of leadership.

Working as a Physical Therapy Aide for La Verne Physical Therapy not only aligns with my long-term career goals, but also with my values as an organization which provides professional and courteous assistance to all clients. My background and skills will allow me to make direct and meaningful contributions to your organization.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I look forward to hearing from you soon so that we may further discuss how my skills and abilities are aligned with the Physical Therapy Aide position.

Sincerely,

Leo Leopard
THANK YOU (AND OTHER) LETTERS

Thank You Letter

Dear Ms. Brown,

Thank you so much for the opportunity to interview with Miller Youth and Family Services. I am not only impressed by the comprehensive services you offer for your clients, but also by your staff’s support of and commitment to each other as a team.

It was especially helpful to hear about your experience transitioning into the organization from a county department, as well as your take on the volunteers who work here. I have no doubt that your perspective will be invaluable for whomever you select as the new Mentor Program Manager.

I remain very interested in this position, and regardless of the outcome, I greatly appreciate your willingness to meet with me and share more about the work you do here. I hope that your interview process runs smoothly, and I look forward to hearing from you soon regarding your decision. Please let me know if you have any further questions regarding my experience, skills, and interest in the position.

Thank you,

Jane Smith

A. Thank you notes are 4-8 sentences long. Use this format as a reference. If your interview was conducted by a panel of interviewers each person should receive a separate letter.

1. (Same for everyone) Say thank you.
2. (Same for everyone) Tell them why you are thanking them or give your overall impression of the meeting.
3. (Unique to each person) Give a statement about something you specifically appreciated from your time with them.
4. (Same for everyone) Closing lines.

B. Who should get a thank you letter? Everyone you interviewed with should receive a thank you letter. If someone takes the time to interview or share advice or resources (whether it’s an employment or informational interview) it is considered professionally polite to acknowledge it. A thank you also sets you apart from other candidates.

C. Should I send my note by email or via the post office?
If you know that the employer is making a decision in the next few days, send a short thank you email within 24 hours of your interview. Always follow up with a more personalized hand written note sent by post. If you’re not sure, you can ask. For example, at the end of the interview, you could ask the administrative assistant or whoever organized the day for the contact information of everyone you met. You can also ask their opinion. “I’d like to send brief thank you notes to Ms. Brown and Mr. Jones. Do you recommend email or a paper correspondence?”

D. If I send paper correspondence, do I need to use cards that say ‘thank you’?
No. Simple 4x6” folding cards are excellent for brief, 4 sentence thank you notes. You do not have to use the ones with thank you stamped on them. You may also choose ones with the University of La Verne logo or your monogram (be sure they look professional). Handwrite them, for a more personal touch. However, be sure that you write legibly!
Acceptance Letter

Kristin Campbell
California Products Inc.
1432 Juniper Blvd.
Los Angeles, CA 90048

Dear Ms. Campbell:

I am delighted to confirm my acceptance for the position of Lead Sales Manager in your Public Relations department at California Products Inc. I will be attending the 3-day training orientation and begin my employment on Monday, June 23rd.

In speaking with Ms. Smith, the human resources representative, I understand that California Products Inc. has an extensive healthcare and insurance benefits program as well as a 401(k) company match plan. As we agreed, my compensation will be $65,000 annually and will provide for 3 weeks paid vacation leave each year.

I would like to once again express my appreciation for your offer and my excitement about joining your team. I look forward to my association with California Products Inc. and feel my contributions will be in line with your goals and continued success for the company.

Sincerely,

Lea Leopard

Rejection/Decline Letters

May 31, 2011

Michael McDonald, Director
The Walt Disney Company
11414 East Rose St.
Anaheim, CA 928036

Dear Mr. McDonald:

It was a pleasure meeting with you and your staff to discuss your needs for an administrative assistant. Our time together was very informative and enjoyable.

I want to thank you for the offer you have made to join your team as an Administrative Assistant. After careful thought and consideration, I have decided to decline the position. My decision is primarily based on the fact that I recently accepted a position elsewhere that is well suited with my qualifications, experiences, and future goals.

I want to thank you for interviewing me and giving me the opportunity to learn more about your company and its projects. Best wishes to you and your staff.

Sincerely,

Mary Murphy
JOB INTERVIEWING

An interview is a mutual exchange of information between two people in order for both to evaluate the fit between the applicant and the organization. As a candidate, don’t forget that you are also interviewing them; you should be thinking about whether or not the company or job is best for you.

Screening/initial interview - intended to eliminate candidates who do not possess the necessary qualifications. Interviews conducted over the phone or at a career fair are usually screening interviews. They are short (30 minutes-1 hour) and are meant to evaluate any or all of the following:

- experience
- education
- technical skills/abilities
- soft skills (i.e., enthusiasm, initiative, maturity, leadership potential)

Selection/final interview - longer and more thorough, lasting anywhere from an hour to an entire day. A candidate will visit the organization and may meet with a series of people throughout the course of the interview.

Behavioral Interview
(adapted from “Acing the Behavioral-Based Interview” on Jobweb.com and quintcareers.com)

Employers know that they can teach you the techniques needed to do a job- what they can’t teach are social skills, self-management and communication abilities, or soft/transferrable skills. In order to measure these skills, they will ask questions that require you to give an example or tell a story about a task, accomplishment, or even a difficult situation you faced. The goal is to measure how you responded to a situation and what you learned or gained from it. When answering these questions, remember:

S.T.A.R.

| Situation/Task | Describe a specific event or situation, not a generalized description of what you have done in the past. Be sure to give enough detail for the interviewer to understand. This situation can be from a job, volunteer position, academic assignment or campus involvement. Avoid personal experiences. |
| Action you took | Describe the action you took; be sure to keep the focus on you. Even if you are discussing a group project or effort, describe what you did -- not the efforts of the team. Don't tell what you might do, tell what you did. |
| Results | What happened? How did the event end? What did you accomplish? What did you learn? If the situation turned out poorly, what would you do differently? |

Examples of Behavioral Interview Questions:

- Can you remember a situation in which you demonstrated real compassion to a teammate when it would have been easier not to? Tell me about a time when you put your own work aside to help someone else.
- Tell me about a time when you took a calculated risk to achieve a goal, but were unsuccessful. What did you learn? What about a time you championed an idea, but failed to convince others? What did you learn?
- Can you tell me about a time when you felt that you exceeded the needs of a professor, supervisor, or team? What did you do and why was it successful?
- This position requires you to interact with customers who are often frustrated or in a hurry. Tell me about your experience working in a fast-paced environment. How do you handle angry or disgruntled clients?
PREPARING FOR THE INTERVIEW

Jobs are usually offered to the person who can best communicate his/her interest and skills related to the position. This person may or may not be the most experienced or even qualified candidate. Before you head into an interview, PREPARE!

1. Know the organization - research the company and be able to answer these questions:
   - What is the organizational structure, history, and philosophy/mission statement?
   - What are the company’s locations and products or services?
   - Have they shown substantial and/or consistent growth?
   - Who are their major competitors? What other companies are in the same market or field?
   - Where do they stand in the marketplace in relation to their competitors?
   - Has there been and is there likely to be any major change in the company’s field (i.e. technological changes, labor market changes, etc.)?

   *Along with the company’s website, Vault.com and Glassdoor.com offer insider information via employee surveys, general statistics and message boards.

2. Know the position - what type of employee are they looking for?
   Become very familiar with the job description, and required and preferred qualifications. Also, review the company’s mission statement. Think of examples from your professional/academic career that demonstrate you have these skills (remember S.T.A.R!) Below are listed some of the most common attributes or qualities that interviewers look for.
   - Interpersonal skills
   - Written and oral communication
   - Leadership/motivation/initiative
   - Analytical abilities
   - Work ethic
   - Sensitivity to others, especially within multicultural settings
   - Planning/organization/time management
   - Sales ability/persuasiveness
   - Goal setting and work standard

3. Know yourself - be ready to speak to all of these areas!
   Your Interests and Values: What career fields or type of work inspire you? What is important to you in a work environment? Are your general interests consistent with the particular job for which you are interviewing? You may be asked, "Why do you want to work in this field?"
   Your Personality: How do you relate to others? Be sure you understand your style and what you contribute as a member of a team.
   Your Skills and Abilities: What are you good at? What skills do you have that will contribute to the organization? What skills do you need to acquire for this job?
   Your Experience: What have you done that qualifies you for this position? Consider all previous jobs, volunteer work, academics, and any other experiences you’ve had.
   Your Education: What education and training do you have that qualifies you for this position?
   Your Goals: What do you want to be doing in 5 or 10 years? Clearly define short and long range goals. Employers look favorably upon candidates who have well-defined goals, but be sure not to communicate that you are using the position as a stepping stone to get a better job.
4. Practice - set up a mock interview in Career Services and review commonly asked interview questions.

5. Other Preparation Tips
   - Know where to go and be on time. If you are at all uncertain of the location, call for the exact address/directions and allow extra time for traffic. Don’t be more than 10 minutes early; if you arrive before then, use the extra time to relax or prepare in your car.
   - Be sure to know the name and title of your interviewer. Greet the interviewer with a smile, a firm handshake and good eye contact.
   - Bring at least one extra copy of your resume with you since you may need it for reference if filling out an application. Also bring your references page.
   - Bring a pen and notebook. Take notes during the interview, but be sure to ask for permission. Also bring a list of the questions you plan to ask the employer.
DRESSING FOR THE INTERVIEW

Your clothes say a lot about you. Employers will generally assume they are seeing you at your best. If you are not looking your best, they may wonder how much worse it can get. A good rule of thumb is to know what the typical dress norms are for the organization, and dress one step above that. Always dress conservatively.

For traditional business settings (banking, consulting, insurance, etc.):

- Dark colored or charcoal tailored suit (double or single breasted), well pressed.
- Long sleeve, wrinkle free 100% cotton shirt, usually white, light blue, pastel or pin-striped.
- Ties should be plain or have a conservative stripe, paisley or a small print. Do not wear red - this is a “power” color and is not appropriate until you get the job.
- Tie should extend to the belt buckle, not below or above.
- Calf length socks that match the color of the suit and coordinate with the shoes (black or dark blue).
- Black or brown dress shoes (loafers or wing-tips), polished.
- Accessories may include a classic metal or leather watch, wedding ring if married and briefcase.

For arts, education, non-profit, and other settings, the following may also be appropriate:

- Dress slacks plus sport coat (wool or wool/polyester blend) or dark blazer.
- Dress shirt, tie and dress shoes.

For traditional business settings (banking, consulting, insurance, etc.):

- Dark colored business skirt, suit or pantsuit. Skirt length can be on or just above the knee; avoid mini-skirts.
- Solid colored (bright colors or neutrals are allowed) collared blouses with sleeves no shorter than elbows; avoid plunging necklines and sheer materials.
- Closed-toe shoes in a dark color, polished. No sandals or extremely high heels.
- Skin-toned or dark sheer hosiery, avoid patterns.
- Simple and conservative make up and jewelry.
- Hair pulled back and bangs out of face.

For other settings, the following may also be appropriate:

Dress with jacket.
Jacket, skirt and blouse.

General Tips:
Avoid distracting hair styles, jewelry, nail polish.
For men, clean shaven is best, but a short mustache/beard is acceptable.
Cover piercings and tattoos.
Have neatly groomed, neutral colored fingernails.
No scented lotion, cologne or perfume - you may be meeting someone who is allergic!
SAMPLE INTERVIEW QUESTIONS
(adapted from Business Week Careers Job Search)

1. Tell me a little about yourself.
2. What makes you stand out from the other candidates for this position?
3. Why do you want to work at this company?
4. What is one of your greatest accomplishments in your former positions?
5. What are your greatest strengths? What are your biggest weaknesses?
6. Where do you see yourself in five years? What are your long term goals?
7. What do you do to manage stress in a high stress work environment?
8. Describe your relationship with your last supervisor. What were the best and most challenging aspects of that relationship? What would your last supervisor say about you?
9. What do you expect from a supervisor and colleagues in order to be productive in the work place?
10. Why are you leaving your current or most recent position?
11. How do you schedule your time and determine priorities?
12. What aspect of this job do you think would be most challenging for you?
13. What was your biggest disappointment? How did you cope with it?
14. Tell me about your most recent work history. How does it qualify you for this position?
15. Can you think of a recent problem in which old solutions wouldn't work? How did you solve it?
16. Tell me about a time in which you demonstrated initiative and creativity. How do you think these attributes help you to do your job better?
17. Give me three words that describe you.
18. Tell me about a time that a colleague or co-worker criticized your work. How did you handle it?
19. What questions do you have for me?

Questions you might ask the interviewer:

1. In your opinion, what is the personality of this organization?
2. Can you tell me about the people with whom I would be working on a daily basis?
3. How would you describe your management style?
4. What are the organization’s goals, objectives, and direction this year?
5. What are the opportunities for growth/new responsibilities in this position?
6. What do you think is the biggest problem I would face in starting this position?
7. Where did my predecessor go? How long was he/she with you?
8. What are the intangible expectations for the position as well as the job description?
9. What kind of ongoing training does the organization offer?
10. What opportunity for performance reviews/evaluations would there be? I want to be able to regularly receive feedback so I can be sure that I am performing well in my position.
If asked an illegal question, you have three options:

1. You can answer the question—you’re free to do so, if you wish. However, if you choose to answer an illegal question, remember that you are giving information that isn’t related to the job; in fact, you might be giving the “wrong” answer, which could harm your chances of getting the job.

2. You can refuse to answer the question, which is well within your rights. Unfortunately, depending on how you phrase your refusal, you run the risk of coming off as uncooperative or confrontational—hardly words an employer would use to describe the “ideal” candidate.

3. You can examine the question for its intent and respond with an answer as it might apply to the job. For example, the interviewer asks, “Are you a U.S. citizen?” or “What country are you from?” You’ve been asked an illegal question. You could respond, however, with “I am authorized to work in the United States.” Similarly, let’s say the interviewer asks, “Who is going to take care of your children when you have to travel for the job?” You might answer, “I can meet the travel and work schedule that this job requires.”

INFORMATIONAL INTERVIEWING
(adapted from quintcareers.com)

Purpose: Informational interviews with a professional in your field of interest will help you gain better understanding and insight into a particular field or company. You may bring your resume, but do not assume that the professional will want a copy of it. Also, NEVER ask for a job or assume that he/she will help you to find one.

Be sure to research the field and company beforehand so you can tailor your questions to that person’s situation. Dress professionally and ask if you may keep in touch with the person in case you have more questions regarding their career. Send a hand-written thank you card directly after the interview.

Informational interviewing calling/emailing script example:

“I am a student at University of La Verne and thinking about exploring a career in book publishing. I got your name from the Assistant Director of Career Services, who suggested I contact you to talk about how you began your career. I am very interested in hearing about how you got into publishing and any advice you might have for me. Would you have about 30 minutes to sit down with me so I can ask you a few questions?”

Sample Interview Questions
(Choose up to ten and tailor to your needs)

1. “How did you become interested in this field?”
2. “What do you think is the best educational preparation for a career in this field?”
3. “Of all the individuals you have met in this field, what personal attributes do you think are essential to success?”
4. “What professional journals and organizations should I know about in this field?”
5. “What do you wish you had known before you got into this field?”
6. “What did it take for you to get into this position?”
7. “What skills are required of a (insert professional title) on a day to day basis?”
8. “What is a typical work day like for you?”
9. “How many hours a week do you work? How often do you work overtime?”
10. “What more do you think I need to know to make an informed decision on graduate school or a career in this field?”
11. “Who are the most important people in this field and what are the current changes and developments?”
12. “What type of work/volunteer/internship experience do you think I need to get?”
13. “What do entry level/mid-level/senior level positions require in terms of education/experience?”
14. “What do you believe the current hiring trends are in your field? Do you believe there will be a need for entry/mid-level/senior level positions if I decide to apply?”
15. “What industry experience do most of the members of the board of directors have in common?”
16. “Regarding promotions, how quickly have most managers gotten to the top of this field?”
17. “Can you suggest anyone else whom it would be helpful to talk to? May I use your name when contacting him/her?”
When you are applying and interviewing for a job, the organization you are seeking a position with is interested more than just your ability to perform the tasks listed in the job description. Similarly, they want to know that you are about more than just passion for the industry, but also have the necessary knowledge and skills to perform the position duties. Therefore, one should consider taking a holistic approach to the job application and appeal to the organizational culture (is this company formal, are they a younger company, like Tom’s Shoes, are they philanthropic?) and purpose (what do they do/who do they serve?) in addition to the job skills listed on the position description.

An Example:
You are seeking a job as a human resources specialist for a non-profit organization, which has programs serving youth in the community. In addition to including your (related to human resources) education and experiences, you should also consider adding any experiences you may have had with non-profit organizations (as a volunteer or employee) as well as any experiences you have had working with youth.

This will help show the organization that you are not only capable of performing the job duties, but are also a good fit for the organization as a whole.
